Ken Williams is the founder of Unfold The Soul, author of the award-winning Ruthless Equity, host of Conversations in Color with Unfold The Soul, and a former teacher and school principal.

His work explores a fundamental shift in the purpose of school leadership: to serve and showcase a faculty of self-directed content experts whose strongest instruction is available to every student.

Through speaking, consulting, original hand-drawn art, Conversations in Color, and The Faculty Unfolding, Ken provokes a different conversation about the work of schools—empowering leaders to build schools known for the expertise of their faculty, not the plight of families.

Ken and his wife, Nicole, live in Atlanta and are proud parents of two adult children. He is an avid bowler and can often be found running errands for no reason in his 1975 Oldsmobile Delta 88 Royale convertible.
